Chapter 6 | Finance Talk

Key Takeaway

Finances can create division or build unity. When couples communicate openly, work as a team, and put God first, money becomes a tool for His purposes.

Lesson Summary

The way we spend our money reveals our priorities, values, fears, and trust. We each bring different financial experiences and expectations into marriage, which is why understanding one another is so important. Healthy couples approach finances as a team through transparency, shared decisions, and a plan for their money. Putting God first is foundational. As we put God first, steward what He has entrusted to us, and develop a shared vision, we can move from fighting about money to dreaming together.

Discuss Together

1) How did your upbringing shape the way you view money today?
2) Do our financial decisions reflect that God is our source and our first priority?
3) What financial goals or dreams would we love to accomplish together in the next year?

Put into Practice

Schedule a Money Date and choose one financial goal or habit you can work on together. Dream together. Plan together. Trust God together.
