Chapter 7 | Parenting Talk

Key Takeaway

Parenting requires unity and consistency as we raise children to know, love, and follow God. A godly marriage is one of the greatest gifts we give our children.

Lesson Summary

Our children are one of the greatest gifts God entrusts to us. We are called to steward, disciple, and prepare them for God's purposes.
Healthy parenting begins with a united marriage and modeling what we want our children to become. More is caught than taught, so our children need to see faith, humility, forgiveness, and integrity at home. As parents, we have the privilege of pulling out the gold in our children by speaking life, helping them discover their God-given gifts, and balancing love with discipline.
Most importantly, we seek God for wisdom and cover our children in prayer, trusting Him to fill the gaps.

Discuss Together

1) Where do we need greater unity in our parenting?
2) What are our children learning from what we model, not just what we teach?
3) What God-given strengths or "gold" do we see in each of our children that we can intentionally call out and encourage?

Put into Practice

Spend intentional one-on-one time with each child and speak life over what you see in them. Call out the gold. Speak life. Pray for their future.
